

Calling all Food Technology teachers...

The National Awarding Organisation HABC and the Food for Life Partnership have worked together to develop a Level 1 National Award in Food Safety qualification aimed at Key Stage 3 in schools. The qualification has been developed in consultation with key food technology teachers to be specific for both the domestic and education setting, whilst also complementing the food technology curriculum.

Key benefits

- A nationally recognised qualification
- Assessed through a multiple-choice question paper
- Links directly to the food technology curriculum
- Increased knowledge of food safety and hygiene that can also be used in the home
- Builds pupil self-esteem and improves life skills
- Raises visibility of food technology departments
- Low-cost examination fees.

Over the past several months and largely due to the 2011 outbreaks of E. coli and Norovirus the importance of food safety has featured heavily in the media. This 12-hour guided learning qualification offered by the National Awarding Organisation HABC and the Food for Life Partnership enables universal access to a certificated course which will go a long way to ensuring that an understanding of food safety is instilled in pupils at a young age.

For more information and to register for this qualification please visit our website:

www.highfieldabc.com

or email:

foodforlife@highfieldabc.com